Congratulations to School of Science and Technology students Askarbek Orakov and Altynay Abdirakhmanova on winning the International Genetically Engineered Machine (iGEM, Boston) competition!

From more than 2700 participants from every corner of the world our students won silver medal.

The International Genetically Engineered Machine (iGEM) Foundation is an independent, non-profit organization dedicated to education and competition, the advancement of synthetic biology, and the development of an open community and collaboration (<http://igem.org>).

Congratulations to Professors and other team members who took an active participation in our victory.
